Developing Strategies to Address the Child-Only Caseload
Prattville, Alabama
Short Report

Under the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) program, child-only cases—those in which no adult is included in the cash grant—have become an increasing proportion of State TANF caseloads in recent years. Child-only cases are either parental or non-parental. Parental cases are those in which the parent is resident in the home, but ineligible for TANF receipt for such reasons as time limits,¹ sanction, alien status, Supplemental Security Income (SSI) receipt, or previous drug felony conviction. Non-parental cases are those in which neither biological parent is present, and another adult, usually a relative, is the primary caregiver. Research indicates that the percentage of child-only cases relative to overall national caseloads increased 200 percent in one decade—from 12 percent in 1990 to nearly 35 percent by 2000.² In some States, over fifty percent of their FY2002 caseloads were child-only.³ More caseload trends are depicted in Table 1, below:

Table 1.
TANF Child-Only Cases: National Trends
Fiscal Year	Total TANF Families	Total Child-Only Families	Percentage Child-Only Families
1990	3,976,000	459,000	11.6
1992	4,769,000	707,000	14.8
1994	5,046,000	869,000	17.2
1996	4,553,000	978,000	21.5
1998	3,176,000	743,000	23.4
1999	2,648,000	770,000	29.1
2000	2,269,000	782,000	34.5

In addition to the variability in the proportion of a State's total caseload accounted for by child-only cases, the existing research indicates that the composition of the child-only caseload across the States varies as well. In some States, for example, there is a significantly higher proportion of relative (non-parental) cases, while in others, SSI, immigrant, and sanctioned or time-limited parental cases are more common.

¹ Child-only cases are not subject to such requirements as work participation or time limits. Thus, while parents “time out” of eligibility, children remain eligible, barring full-family sanction policy.

In response to these trends, the Welfare Peer Technical Assistance Network conducted discussion with State TANF administrators around the country to assess their current policies and programs designed to meet the needs of the child-only caseload, and to gauge their level of interest in participating in a Roundtable on this topic. The responses were overwhelming – we gathered significant information on the current child-only environment, and more than thirty States expressed an interest in the Roundtable concept. The first of these Roundtables entitled Developing Strategies to Address the Child-Only Caseload was held April 8-9, 2003 in Colorado Springs (El Paso County), Colorado, and the second was held June 3-4, 2003 in Trenton, New Jersey. The third and most recent Roundtable was held in Prattville, Alabama on July 29-30, 2003.

During this third Roundtable, participants heard presentations from El Paso County, Colorado, and the States of Alabama and New Jersey about innovative practices in those locations. South Carolina shared results of a large-scale research effort regarding the demographics and well-being of the TANF child-only caseload. The Roundtable also enjoyed sessions regarding economic security, presented by staff from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and the AARP. Thanks to the hospitality of the State of Alabama Department of Human Resources, Roundtable participants were given a tour of Alabama's Kinship Care (KC) program. Participants in the Roundtable were also able to speak with program specialists, staff, and clients of these child-only services.

The full report, available in late August, will fully describe the Roundtable, attended by Alabama, El Paso County, Colorado, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, and West Virginia.
